Covalent and noncovalent interactions between graphene oxide (GO) and calix[4]arene tetra-urea (1) have been investigated using density functional theory and molecular dynamics simulations. We find that 1 can combine with GO through hydrogen bonds, pi-pi stacking, and CH...pi interactions. For noncovalent complexes, only the polar interactions are slightly affected when the GO sheets are moved from neutral to negatively charged states. On the other hand, the nonpolar interactions between 1 and GO are dramatically enhanced by increasing the GO charge state, and the electrostatic repulsion results in the detachment of a single GO sheet from the positively charged complex. The results provide an insight into the role of the GO charge state on the reactivity of GO/polymer composites. To understand the clinical and bacteriological features of colorectal cancer and their correlation with cetuximab therapy. The clinical and bacteriological features of 102 patients with colorectal cancer were collected and analyzed. Of the 102 patients, 73 were male and 29 were female. Fifty-one patients were with RAS (K-ras) mutation. Of them 2d92ce491b
